Type your essay here. You can give some background information in the introduction if needed. You may use first person pronouns because this is a personal essay. Do not use second person pronouns, contractions, or abbreviations.

Begin describing your topic in the first body paragraph. You are not limited to only three body paragraphs. Change paragraphs as you change points of importance (order of importance organization) or areas of description (spatial organization). Remember you have a list of transition words in your ISN that may help you with your paragraph transitions.

After completing your body paragraphs, write your conclusion paragraph. In this paragraph reinforce your feelings about your topic, but do not just repeat what you have already said. Consider writing about the lasting impression or effect your topic has had or will have on you.
